DNA links dead man to Beacon Hill cold case

BOSTON. A convicted rapist who died from cancer in 2001 has been linked by DNA evidence to a decades-old murder of a young woman in her Beacon Hill apartment.

Michael Sumpter was 54 when he died. He was ordered to give a DNA sample after he had been convicted in a 1975 rape of a 21-year-old woman in her Beacon Street home.

Suffolk District Attorney Daniel Conley said Thursday that DNA evidence has also linked Sumpter to the 1973 killing and sexual assault Mary Lee McClain, 23.

Authorities said evidence earlier linked him to a 1972 rape and murder of another young woman. METRO

Hanger fire at Logan Airport

BOSTON. Fire crews responded to an airplane hanger at Logan International Airport Thursday morning for reports of a fire.

The empty hanger was undergoing renovations when it caught fire, the fire department said.

Crews from Boston and Massport responded to the hanger about 9:30 a.m. to fight the two-alarm blaze.

Fire officials said the blaze was located in a third-floor office.

There were no reports of injuries and no planes were in the area.

The cause is under investigation. METRO

Fungus found in pharmacy

FRAMINGHAM. A fungus linked to the national deadly fungal meningitis outbreak was found in an unopened vial in the Framingham pharmacy.

The finding was announced Thursday by the Food and Drug Administration.

Federal health agencies said the unopened vial at the New England Compounding Center links the pharmacy to the multi-state outbreak.

Testing on other vials continues, agencies said.

The outbreak has killed 20 people and infected more than 250.

As many as 14,000 may have been exposed. METRO

City's stance a buzzkill for pleasure promo

Condom-maker Trojan is trying to determine the best place in Boston to pass on the pleasure.

The company said Thursday it's trying to work with the city to find a good spot for its vibrator giveaway promotion on City Hall Plaza after Boston officials weren't satisfied with the location Trojan's marketing company chose.

"We're excited to get the Trojan Vibrations Pleasure Carts back on the road and hope to bring the buzz to Bostonians next," said Bruce Weiss, the vice president of marketing for Trojan Sexual Health. "We will continue to work in partnership with the City of Boston to find the right location to host the Trojan vibrator giveaway and are exploring all options. We want this to be a pleasurable experience for everyone."

In a letter sent Wednesday to the marketing company, Michael Galvin, the city's property management chief, requested that the company find an alternative site for the product distribution and suggested "in the strongest terms allowable" that it not be on the plaza. He also acknowledged that the promotion is legally protected because it would be held on the plaza.

"I am told the public nature of the plaza affords you legal protection to distribute these products should you insist against our objections, but I would tell you in the strongest terms allowable that I feel this is an inappropriate and irresponsible use for the plaza," Galvin wrote in his letter.

Trojan officials and a spokeswoman said Thursday it was not yet known when or where the promotion would take place.

Buzzkill redux

This is not the first time Mayor Thomas Menino's administration has deemed a product inappropriate for the Hub.

- In December 2005, stores removed "Stop Snitchin'" T-shirts at Menino's request because he said they encouraged people to not cooperate with police at a time when city homicides had peaked.
- In June 2011, Menino sent a letter to Niketown on Newbury Street, asking them to remove T-shirts with slogans like "Get High" and "Dope" from their window, saying they promoted drug use.
- In July 2012, Menino wrote a scathing letter to Dan Cathy, president of Chick-fil-A fast food chains, urging him not to open up shop along the Freedom Trail because Cathy's anti-gay marriage statements did not mesh with Boston's goal to extend freedom to all people.

Hub says hello to taxi app Hailo

A taxi hailing app that has taken London, Dublin and Toronto by storm made its U.S. debut in Boston Wednesday.

Founded in 2011 by three London taxi drivers and three Internet entrepreneurs, the two-tap app connects passengers with licensed taxi drivers and offers customers the driver's photo, first name and rating as well as traffic updates.

The app also keeps cabbies safe from fare skippers, since payment is preauthorized.

Hailo's Chairman and Founder Ron Zeghibe said the app has grown to be the No. 1 taxi service in London and Dublin, and became the second-largest in Toronto within days of its launch, so it comes as no surprise he is optimistic about its success in the Hub.

"Boston is one of those old, iconic taxi towns," said Zeghibe, a Boston native who now lives in London. "If we can make it work in one of the most iconic taxi cities in the world, we believe we can make it work almost anywhere."

Vanessa Kafka, general manager of Hailo Boston, believes that city dwellers in Boston will be eager to ease what she calls "travel burdens."

Free hugs for those up for it

The people at Boston's Definition of Nyce company believe a simple act of kindness, like hugging a stranger, doesn't only feel good — it spreads love and happiness.

That's why the nonprofit streetwear company is rallying well-wishers to hit the streets of Boston Saturday between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to try and hand out 10,000 free hugs to anyone they can during a march between Boston Common and the South End.

If nature tries to rain on the "hug chain," they will distribute the free hugs to shoppers inside the Prudential Center.

"Our goal is to spread positive messages, and get a lot of people involved in a positive event in the city. We hope that it is a success," said Renee Deschene, a Definition of Nyce employee.

While hugs are often a welcome gesture between loved ones, it's no secret that strangers aren't always keen on random people approaching them with open arms. But for optimist Deschene, that's no reason not to try.

"We're anticipating [to get shut down] a little bit, but were hopeful. If we're a large group of happy, smiling people, we figure a lot of people will hug us back," she said.

Free T-shirts

The huggers will be wearing matching T-shirts that depict an open-armed rhinoceros with the caption "Hug Me." As a gesture of generosity, they also plan to hand out 2,000 of the free shirts.

Fourth assault on MBTA bus driver this month

BOSTON. For the fourth time this month, an MBTA bus driver was allegedly assaulted by a passenger.

According to a report by transit police, around 5:40 a.m. Thursday, a man demanded to be let off of a bus on Albany Street near Boston Medical Center, but when the bus driver refused because it was an unauthorized stop, the man allegedly punched him in the side of the head.

The suspect then pushed out the emergency window exit and jumped out before fleeing.

On Tuesday, a reportedly belligerent man was arrested near Dudley Street after allegedly shouting and spitting at a bus driver, then smashing the vehicle's windows and allegedly assaulting transit police. METRO

Google tumbles after profit, sales miss analysts' estimates

Google Inc. reported third-quarter profit and sales that missed analysts' estimates, a sign that its tools are becoming less valuable to advertisers while costs associated with expansion into new businesses are chipping away at profitability.

Profit excluding some items was $9.03 a share, the Mountain View, California-based company said in a regulatory filing today. Excluding sales passed to partner sites, revenue was $11.3 billion. Analysts on average had estimated profit of $10.65 a share on sales of $11.8 billion. The stock tumbled after the results were released inadvertently, and trading was later halted.

The average amount advertisers paid each time a user clicks on a promotion declined about 15 percent from a year earlier and was 3 percent less than the prior period. The company also is ramping up spending on engineering, marketing and acquisitions to help it expand beyond search advertising. The company earlier this year spent $12.4 billion on Motorola Mobility Holdings, pushing it further into the hardware market and stepping up its rivalry with Apple Inc.

Youth vote: Candidates still giving it the old college try

With less than three weeks left before election day, the youth vote has once more come into focus. A student concerned about his future job prospects asked the first question at the Hofstra University presidential debate Tuesday night, and both candidates have set up extensive campus operations in swing states.

In another clear bid for younger voters, President Barack Obama will appear this evening on Jon Stewart's "Daily Show," the sort of venue challenger Mitt Romney has avoided so far.

Likely voters in this age group prefer Obama to Romney by 54 percent to 36 percent in Reuters/Ipsos polling from the week ending Oct. 14.

The Romney campaign is working to mobilize students unhappy with the president's record, with 188 chapters of a pro-Romney student group on campuses in 11 "target states," according to a campaign aide.

"I don't think you'll see the president enjoying the same amount of support that he had in 2008, very simply because the Obama economy has created a lost generation of young voters," the aide said.

The Obama campaign has gone a step further, bringing buses to some campus rallies that later take students to register or vote early. REUTERS

No place like home?

Mass. senator: Romney might lose home state

Massachusetts Sen. Scott Brown's worst nightmare is that his party's nominee, Mitt Romney, will set a record for presidential candidates.

Romney may lose his home state of 40 years, which he governed for four.

Recent voter surveys show Romney trailing President Barack Obama in the state by 14 to 33 percentage points.

To overcome the anticipated Obama tsunami in Massachusetts, Brown is counting on thousands of voters splitting their tickets to back him over his Democratic opponent, consumer advocate Elizabeth Warren, with whom he's running neck-and-neck in polls. Brown, who won the seat in a 2010 special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Edward M. Kennedy, needs every Obama voter he can get, including members of organized labor. BLOOMBERG

Romney takes to damage control

Mitt Romney's claim to have ordered up "binders full of women" to staff his Massachusetts cabinet has opened a fresh struggle with President Barack Obama for the backing of female voters, threatening to erode the Republican nominee's gains with a crucial constituency. Romney's comment at the second presidential debate sparked Internet ridicule, Democratic derision and days of damage control. On the campaign trail, the candidates courted women with differing messages. Romney said he could resolve their economic challenges, and Obama argued he is the one who values their concerns and contributions. BLOOMBERG

Think tank says Romney's tax plan won't work

Mitt Romney's proposed cap on itemizing tax deductions could not on its own raise enough new government tax revenue to compensate for revenues lost by the Republican presidential candidate's plan to slash income tax rates, a think tank said on Wednesday. REUTERS

What's wrong?

The Tax Policy Center, a nonpartisan group, said his deductions cap could raise up to $1.7 trillion over 10 years. The center said earlier this year Romney's 20 percent tax rate cut would cost $4.8 trillion.

Romney disagrees

Romney has argued that his plan will not cost $4.8 trillion.

The Romney campaign had previously criticized the Tax Policy Center's estimates, saying they did not account for economic growth that can pay for tax cuts and that the center excluded some tax breaks in their studies.

The campaign has said the limit on itemized deductions would be only part of its plan to fund the rate cut. The Tax Policy Center admitted its latest estimates were based on an incomplete picture.

FIFTY SHADES OF PURPLE

Jessica tossed the Help Wanted section onto the bar and grabbed a stool. A whole day of looking and a ruined pair of heels had turned up nothing. All she wanted now was a little quiet time to think up a new plan.

"Hey, little lady, can I buy you a drink?" Oh no. She'd last seen him four years ago, promising every woman in the place wonderful things if only they'd help him one night in November. Now here he was, grinning on the stool to her left.

"Hi, Mr. President. Haven't seen you in a while."

"Well, I've been making a better world for you," he said. "I passed the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act. What did you think of that?"

"It's okay, I guess, if you plan to sue your employer. But I haven't seen my pay change much. I'm unemployed."

"Really? That's surprising since my economic recovery is going so well. Anyway, look, I've also promoted health care reform, I'm standing up for reproductive rights …"

Jessica sighed.

"Yeah, but women are about more than Band-Aids and birth control. For example, did you make half your Cabinet women?"

"Um, no. More like a third."

"Maybe you should have borrowed some of Romney's binders."

They would forever treat women as prizes to be won, not whole human beings to be respected.

Someone lunged onto the stool to her right, and Jessica stifled a groan when she saw who it was.

"Did someone say Romney?"

"Hello, governor," she said.

"Is he trying to sell you his whole 'GOP war on women,' act?" the newcomer grinned.

"Listen, I love women. I've hired loads of them! And I gave them flexible schedules so they could be home in time to cook dinner."

"And you think I should vote for you because of that?"

"Some of my best friends are women," the men said in unison.

They started arguing, and Jessica gathered her things. They'd never understand. They would forever treat women as prizes to be won, not whole human beings to be respected.

And once election night is over, she thought, they'll forget all about us … until the next campaign comes around.

WEEKEND

THE FLAVORS OF FALL

Metro caught up with Boston chefs to find out their favorite autumn ingredient and how they're using it Chestnuts, squash and pumpkins help make their dishes delicious

1 Barbara Lynch, No. 9 Park/ Menton
Ingredient: Chestnuts
Use: Roasted Scottish partridge with candied chestnuts
"Chestnuts have a wonderful, mellow sweetness that works with the rich and rustic flavors of fall to really balance savory dishes. I love including them with game, mushrooms, squash and foie gras. If you can find them, I recommend using frozen chestnuts, which are easy and high quality."

2 Andrew Yeo, Artisan Bistro
Ingredient: Butternut squash
Use: Venison with butternut squash tamale
"I love the color and flavor. It's not overpowering and makes a great companion to both fish and meat. The tamale incorporates squash in two different ways: roasted and pureed. It's a unique fall twist to a traditional ethnic dish."

3 Lydia Shire, Towne Stove and Spirits/Scampo
Ingredient: Chuck steak
Use: Swiss steak
"I love the comforting, bold flavors that a good chuck brings. The key to this dish is the flour you pound into the meat, which [results] in the silkiest sauce after a three- to four-hour braise. This dish will warm the cockles of your heart and fill your home with the most wonderful aromas. Toss in a little football-watching for good measure!"

4 Jody Adams, Rialto/Trade
Ingredient: Pumpkin and pomegranate
Use: Pumpkin soup and pomegranate-glazed eggplant
"These two ingredients make a perfect pair for the season. Pumpkin just says fall. A traditional ingredient that has a foundation of flavor, pumpkin pairs beautifully with bacon, duck and herbs. And then pomegranate brings a crisp and refreshing flavor. It cuts through the heaviness of fellow fall ingredients."

5 Armand Toutaint, Turner Fisheries
Ingredient: Molasses
Use: Buttercup bisque
"The earthy dark color says fall to me. Not only does it lend itself well to the rich taste and texture of squash and root vegetables, it also gives dishes a touch of sweetness without being overly sugary — it doesn't change the flavor of the dish, but enhances it."

"I love the color and flavor. It's not overpowering and makes a great companion to both fish and meat."
ANDREW YEO, ON BUTTERNUT SQUASH

6 Chris Bussell, BoMA Restaurant + Bar
Ingredient: Squashes
Use: Mexican spiced squash with hen of the wood mushroom
"I particularly like kabocha and buttercup squash. They have a deep earthy flavor with nutty sweetness. I rub the interior with Mexican spices such as guajillo chili and cocoa, add a dash of lime and pair it with hen of the wood mushrooms, which is another fall favorite of mine."

7 Robert Sisca, Bistro du Midi
Ingredient: Pumpkin
Use: Goat cheese gnocchi
"Once the cool weather of fall comes, I love the versatility of different styles of pumpkins. I currently have three different types on my menu. Pumpkins are an underrated vegetable for people to cook with."

8 Kevin Long, Empire/Big Night
Ingredient: Wild mushrooms
Use: Tempura fried maitake mushroom roll
"They are unbelievable this season. Absolutely brilliant and fresh, and the quality is unheard of, and the maitake I'm using are local. I'm also using a chicken mushroom in an updated version of an old classic, hot and sour soup."

9 Bill Brodsky, City Landing
Ingredient: Citrus
Use: Citrus carpaccio salad with Gorgonzola and toasted fennel seeds
"Typically, people think of heavier ingredients, but this is when citrus is in prime season. It's at its best for flavor with a peak balance of bitter and sweet, and it brings back a little bit of summer."

And finally...

Ingredient: Fresh sage toasted in brown butter
Use: Duck and fig ragout with brown butter sage
"This dresses up so many fall dishes. These glistening, crispy, dark green sage leaves also look beautiful and autumnal — it makes the perfect fall garnish, and tastes delicious. It's also easy for the home cook to make."

Weekend recipes

Old-Fashioned Chicken Potpie

We turn to healthy (and delicious) cooking authority, Cooking Light, for a guilt-free version of the flaky, potato-rich classic. Find more recipes like this in their new, "The New Way to Cook Light." Serves eight (serving size: about 1½ cups).

Crust:

- 6¾ ounces all-purpose flour (about 1½ cups), divided
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 7 tablespoons unsalted butter, chilled
- 5 tablespoons ice water

Filling:

- 2 teaspoons unsalted butter
- 1 cup chopped carrot
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
- 3 cups fat-free, lower-sodium chicken broth
- 2⅓ cups cubed red potato (about 1 pound)
- 1.5 ounces (about ⅓ cup) all-purpose flour
- ⅓ cup water
- 2 cups diced cooked rotisserie chicken
- 1 cup frozen petite peas
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- Cooking spray
- 2 teaspoons 1% low-fat milk

Directions:

1. To prepare crust, weigh or lightly spoon 6.75 ounces (about 1½ cups) flour into dry measuring cups; level with a knife. Combine 6.75 ounces (about 1½ cups) flour and ¼ teaspoon salt in a large bowl; cut in 7 tablespoons butter with a pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add 5 tablespoons ice water; stir just until moist. Press mixture gently into a 5-inch circle; cover with plastic wrap. Chill 15 minutes. Roll dough into a 12-by-8 rectangle on a lightly floured surface. Chill dough until ready to use.

2. Preheat oven to 400.

3. To prepare filling, melt 2 teaspoons butter in a Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Add carrot, onion and thyme; cook eight minutes or until vegetables are soft. Add broth and potato; bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Combine flour and ⅓ cup water in a small bowl; stir with a whisk until smooth. Return potato mixture to a boil. Slowly drizzle flour mixture into potato mixture, stirring constantly. Cook one minute or until mixture thickens. Stir in chicken, peas, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Spoon chicken mixture into an 11-by-7 glass or ceramic baking dish coated with cooking spray. Place dough on top of chicken mixture, pressing to edge of dish. Cut four slits in top of crust to allow steam to escape. Gently brush crust with milk. Bake at 400 for 50 minutes or until golden and bubbly. Let stand 10 minutes.

COOKING LIGHT

Tip

Homemade pie crust takes a bit of time to make, but the buttery flavor is worth it. Make individual pot pies by spooning servings into 12-ounce ramekins. Divide dough into eight portions, and roll to fit.

Cinnamon Crumble Apple Pie

Epicurious.com has been our go-to resource for many amazing meals. Now we can find over 250 of their best four-fork recipes, like this genius take on the classic apple pie, in "The Epicurious Cookbook," their first-ever cooking tome out at the end of the month. Yield: Makes eight servings

For crust:

- 1⅓ cups all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon granulated sugar
- ¼ cup (½ stick) chilled unsalted butter, cut into ½-inch cubes
- ¼ cup frozen vegetable shortening, cut into ½-inch cubes
- 3 tablespoons ice water, or more as needed
- ½ teaspoon apple cider vinegar

For filling:

- 3¼ pounds Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored, and sliced ¼-inch thick
- ⅔ cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted

For topping:

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ¼ cup (packed) light brown sugar
- 1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons chilled, unsalted butter, cut into ½-inch cubes
- Vanilla ice cream, for serving

Make crust:

1. Mix the flour, salt and sugar in a large bowl. Add the butter and shortening; rub in with your fingertips until coarse meal forms. Mix 3 tablespoons ice water and the vinegar in a small bowl. Drizzle over the flour mixture; stir with fork until moist clumps form, adding more water by teaspoonfuls if dough is dry. Gather the dough into a ball; flatten into a disk. Wrap in plastic; refrigerate 30 minutes.

2. Position a rack in the center of the oven and preheat the oven to 400°F. Roll out the dough on a lightly floured surface to a 12-inch round. Transfer to a 9-inch glass pie dish. Trim the overhang to ½ inch; turn the edge under and crimp. Refrigerate while preparing the filling and topping.

Make filling and topping:

1. Mix the filling ingredients in large bowl to coat apples.

2. Blend the flour, sugars, cinnamon and salt in a processor. Add the chilled butter cubes; using on/off pulses, cut in until the mixture resembles wet sand.

Assemble and bake pie:

1. Toss the filling to redistribute juices; transfer to the crust, mounding in the center. Pack the topping over and around the apples. Bake the pie on a baking sheet until the topping is golden, about 40 minutes (cover top with foil if browning too quickly).

2. Reduce the oven temperature to 350°F. Bake until the apples in the center are tender when pierced and the filling is bubbling thickly at the edges, about 45 minutes longer. Cool for about one hour. METRO

I LOVE LUCIA

Thirty-five years is a lifetime in the restaurant world
This is why Lucia Ristorante is celebrating with big feasts this month

Nosh On

LINDA LABAN
LINDA.LABAN@METRO.US

ERIN BALDASSARI/METRO

▶ There's still time left to try Lucia's 35th anniversary four-course prix fixe menu, "A Taste of the Times," which runs until Oct. 24. This dinner-only feast features dishes from Lucia's 1977 opening menu. It's Sunday through Friday, through Oct. 24. $35 per person. Entrées: $14-$28.

My, don't they grow up quickly! The Frattaroli family opened Lucia Ristorante on Hanover Street in the North End in 1977, 35 years ago this month. Last year, Lucia's little sister, Lucia Winchester, celebrated 25 years, too. In restaurant years, both are amazing achievements.

Lucia Ristorante sits by the Freedom Trail and spills over to a basement and second floor as needed. The main floor looks out onto Hanover, but the cozy brick-lined interior is what catches and keeps the eye — especially as the entire ceiling is covered by a Renaissance-style fresco in vibrant, rich colors.

At the two ends of the eating scale, when it comes to Italian classics, there's rucola — a.k.a. rocket or arugula — an amazing salad leaf, traditional throughout the Mediterranean. Its bright peppery flavor is incomparable; it needs only shaved Parmesan, a spritzing of olive oil and a squeeze of lemon. Lucia keeps to this simple recipe.

If you go

And then there's cannoli! Lucia's are voluptuous: big and plump with sweetened ricotta.

In-between, what with temperatures dropping, pasta and comfort food are in order. Lucia's shrimp sauteed in butter and garlic, with a white wine deglaze, is served over bruschetta that soaks up the rich butter sauce. For an entree, these flavorsome sweet shrimp are tossed over al dente linguine, too.

That just-chewy linguine is the base for the Marco Polo, a go-for-broke seafood medley of mussels, clams, shrimp and scallops with delicate sole and just a touch of marinara. The menu has risotto, gnocchi and classic meats, of course, but in a city where fresh seafood is eaten like there's no tomorrow, coastal cuisine fits. Call it Boston-Italian cooking.

▶ Toby Jones and Sienna Miller star in "The Girl."

KELLY WALSH

'The Girl'

MOVIE. The twisted relationship between Alfred Hitchcock and his muse, Tippi Hedren, plays out in the kind of psychological battle found in one of the suspense master's movies. This film dramatizes Hedren's time as a "Hitchcock blonde" while filming "The Birds" and "Marnie," when the director — portrayed here by Toby Jones as a lecherous drunk — subjected his leading lady to physical and mental abuse. Based on the tell-all book "Spellbound by Beauty: Alfred Hitchcock and His Leading Ladies," "The Girl" stars Sienna Miller in the titular role as Hedren. Premiere, Saturday, 9 p.m., HBO

'Night of Too Many Stars: America Comes Together for Autism Programs'

SPECIAL. Jerry Seinfeld, Tina Fey, Stephen Colbert, Amy Poehler and a bunch more famous people join host Jon Stewart in the funniest fundraiser for autism programs around. Sunday, 8 p.m., Comedy Central

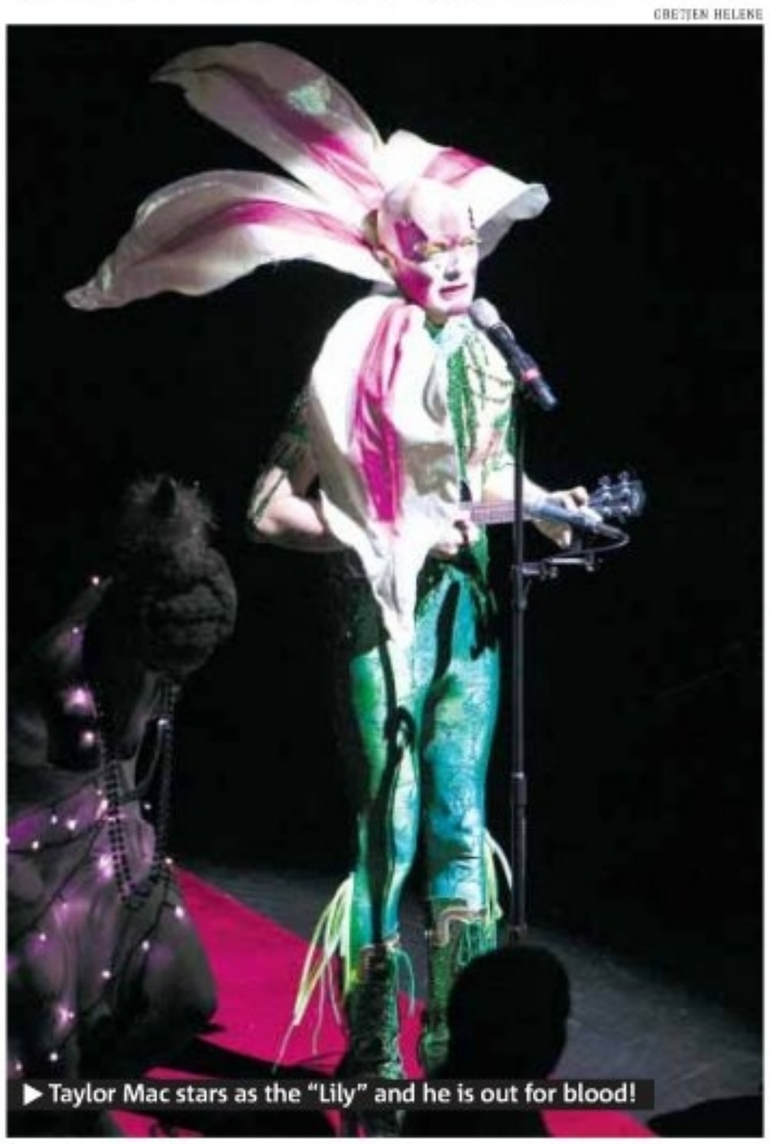
'Nikita'

DRAMA. The good guys may now be in charge of Division, but that doesn't mean the job's gotten any easier when the agents are tasked with bringing in "The Dirty 30," the agents who went rogue after Percy was killed. Season premiere, Friday, 9 p.m., The CW

AMBER RAY

'Revenge' is best served long

- The ART's latest, 'Lily's' clocks in at more than four and a half hours
- But in this riveting theater event, time is like a dream and slips away



▶ Taylor Mac stars as the "Lily" and he is out for blood!

CRETJEN HELENE

"This play is long" says Time at the beginning of "The Lily's Revenge."

But what the timepiece-clad character doesn't tell you is it's more of an event than a play. And that the wildly entertaining extravaganza's four-and-a-half-hour running time feels like the most enjoyable 20 minutes you've ever had.

Film, theater, music and dance collaboratively collide for five delicious acts in which the allegoric tale of an organic potted lily's desire to marry a human is told. While the show certainly pokes holes in social conventions and drives home the point that we can love and marry whomever we choose, you might find yourself so caught up in the fantastical goings-on that you aren't even following the story.

Taylor Mac is the show's creative genius and the Lily. At times, the stunning performance artist might remind you of John Cameron Mitchell's "Hedwig," but his strong convictions and playful essence create an even bigger, more globally relevant protagonist.

It doesn't hurt that Mac is surrounded by local faves like John Kuntz, Margaret Ann Brady, Gene Dante, Remo Airaldi and Thomas Derrah in one of his bravest, most memorable performances to date. Toss in some heads being flushed in a toilet and you get that this is not your grandmother's ballet.

But nobody's complaining. This production is more fun.

SIDNEY BALDWIN

▶ Tyler Perry plays detective Alex Cross in the action film that hits theaters this weekend.

'Alex Cross'

Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●○○○○
Tyler Perry is the new Alex Cross, stepping into the role Morgan Freeman made famous in "Kiss the Girls." In this new thriller, the detective underestimates a serial killer (a skeletal Matthew Fox) and that rare mistake in judgment ends up changing his life. The problems here are many, starting with a TV movie-ready script. The only unused cliche is "Just the facts, ma'am," but we're sure screenwriters are already crafting that line into "Alex Cross 2: My Name's Not Madea." ● RICHARD CROUSE

'Paranormal Activity 4'

Rating: R
Grade: ●●○○○
"Paranormal Activity" fans (those of you who are left) are in for the same ride as usual — only this one should have never started. The fourth installment in the franchise offers viewers the same predictable thrills and a weak storyline that is all too familiar. By this stage in the series they've used up all the tricks in the book. Similar to the "Halloween" and "Friday the 13th" films, there are only so many times that viewers can tolerate seeing the same thing. ● OLIVIA MORROW

A FULLER LIFE IN FILM

▶ From left, Green, Fuller, onscreen, and Yo La Tengo create a live cinematic event. The grandnephew of the American Transcendentalist Margaret Fuller, R. Buckminster Fuller was born in Milton, Mass., in 1895 and is buried with his wife in Mount Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge. Fuller's enduring legacy is his Utopian ideal of better living through better design. "His idea was that if we built things more efficiently, we could distribute resources more evenly," says Green, " and put an end to war."

Sam Green makes 'The Love Song' a living thing with Yo La Tengo ● Film explores local innovator ● 'It's a strange new world,' says director

Documentary filmmaking isn't a genre that puts a significant amount of butts in theater seats. This is why Sam Green, whose 2003 documentary "The Weather Underground" was nominated for a 2003 Academy Award, decided that his latest project, "The Love Song of R. Buckminster Fuller," would be different. With Green as host, this "live film" comes complete with music by indie rock trio Yo La Tengo.

"You have to accept that someone is going to watch your film on their laptop while checking e-mail and doing Facebook," says Green. "Or give them something so that they can't watch in that way. I'm not a Luddite, but I'm a big fan of the magic of seeing a film in a cinema. You give yourself over to this experience. There's something sublime about that."

This Boston premiere brings Fuller's story home, but this architect-philosopher had links to many cities, something Green uses to tailor each performance.

"One of the great things with doing this live piece is you can change it for each show. Fuller traveled so much, everywhere we go we try to work in some local things. The thing about Boston is that there's too much to put in. The challenge is how to include it all."

Though Yo La Tengo provides live music, the project puts Green center stage, narrating the onscreen footage. It's a far cry from writing and directing behind the scenes.

"It's terrifying. It's a big challenge," he admits. "I'm a shy documentary filmmaker. It's a strange new world."

THEATER

'The Chosen'
Through Nov. 17
Lyric Stage Company
140 Clarendon St., Boston
$25-$58, 617-585-5678
www.lyricsstage.com
Based on the novel by Chaim Potok, this play centers on Reuven, an orthodox Jewish kid growing up in 1940s Brooklyn against the backdrop of the revelation of the Holocaust and the debate over Zionism.

MARIO TESTINO

Art

Mario Testino: In Your Face
Sunday through Feb. 3
Museum of Fine Arts
465 Huntington Ave., Boston
$23-$25, 617-267-9300
www.mfa.org
This retrospective of the Vogue and Vanity Fair photographer's work mixes private and formal snapshots to create an inside-and-out impression of the world of high fashion and royalty. The unreality of this world, where superficiality is not a flaw but the main product, has never been lost on Testino, making these works an exploration of human contradiction. Check out Carmen Kass in the photo above. Right?

'The Revenants'
Through Saturday
The Factory Theatre
791 Tremont St., Boston
$15-$18, 617-549-9854
www.happymediumtheatre.com
The latest in a disturbingly sizable series of zombie plays to hit Boston recently takes place in a bunker where two married couples, hiding from said undead menace, discover that one in each pair is infected, prompting the play's central ham-fisted philosophical question: "When does love die?" Our guess: probably around the time your lover tries to eat you.

ART

'Transit of Venus'
Through Dec. 26
Cambridge Multicultural Arts Center
41 Second St., East Cambridge
Free, 617-577-1400
www.multiculturalartscenter.org
This exhibition of photos by Sylvia Stagg-Giuliano doubles as a sort of frozen dance concert. Stagg-Giuliano's striking, silvery pictures, imbued with an almost hypnotic, dream-like aura, both beautiful and unsettling, capture two different works choreographed and performed by Prometheus Dance. They're set at extremes of femininity — one stars two young 19th-century prostitutes, the other two elderly, rural church ladies.

MUSIC

Boston String Players: Bach to Bjork
Friday, 7 p.m.
Museum of Fine Arts, Boston
465 Huntington Ave., Boston
$16-$20, 800-440-6975
www.bostonstringplayers.org
As the title suggests, an arrangement of Bjork's "Unravel" is part of this chamber ensemble's program for the evening. Upping the hipster quotient further is Benjamin Britten's "Simple Symphony," which was featured in "Moonrise Kingdom." Here, it's accompanied by a new dance piece from choreographer Andrea Higgins. Works by Bach and Bartok round things off.

Sri. T.V. Sankaranarayanan
Sunday, 4 p.m.
Wong Auditorium, MIT
70 Memorial Dr., Cambridge
$10-$30, 617-258-7971
www.web.mit.edu/mithas/www
MITHAS, an organization at MIT dedicated to celebrating South Asian culture, presents this vocalist in the Indian carnatic tradition — a strain of Indian classical music focused not on instruments but vocals. In the West we're more familiar with the instrumental tradition, making this a culturally adventurous treat.

Lar Lubovitch Dance Company

$60-$75, 866-348-9738

Lar Lubovitch, one of the world's great living choreographers, is celebrated for his fidelity to the music, a trait that surely aided his work on Broadway, most famously on "Into the Woods." The program for this concert is mostly work from the last 10 years, utilizing the music of Brahms, Liszt, Schumann and Philip Glass.

Music

Though she's called a queen of flamenco, her deeply emotional infusion of jazz, soul and blues has also garnered comparisons to Nina Simone.

TALKS

Steven Pinker
Wednesday, 6 p.m.
Harvard Museum of Natural History
24 Oxford St., Cambridge
Free, 617-495-3045
www.hmnh.harvard.edu
This Harvard psychology professor will discuss and sign his book "The Better Angels of Our Nature: Why Violence Has Declined," now in paperback. In a time when human evil seems as raging as ever, Pinker aims to offer some perspective, arguing that violence has been declining throughout history and we're actually less violent now than we've ever been as a species.

MOVIES

'The American Scream'
Friday and Saturday
Coolidge Corner Theatre
290 Harvard St., Brookline
$10, 617-734-2500
www.coolidge.org
This doc profiles three families in Fairhaven, Mass., who work year-round to transform their homes into elaborate DIY haunted houses each Halloween. Their application of unbridled small-town enthusiasm to such macabre kitsch is an unending source of humor, and not a little eccentric pathos — if only reality TV were so good!

OUTDOOR

Faneuil Hall Marketplace Street Theater Festival
Saturday and Sunday
Faneuil Hall, Boston
Free, 617-523-1300
www.faneuilhall marketplace.com
Faneuil Hall has street performers of all kinds year-round, but here they'll be the main event, from comedy to performance art to contortionism to stage magic, and probably a combination of all of the above. For example, Kilted Colin plays bagpipes, juggles and does comedy — all in a kilt! MATTHEW DINARO

Happy high school diploma, Drake!

Just because you're world famous and fabulously wealthy doesn't mean you can skimp on getting your high school diploma. On Wednesday, Drake tweeted the news that he graduated from high school — at 25 years old. He wrote, "97% on my final exam. 88% in the course. One of the greatest feelings in my entire life. As of tonight I have graduated high school." He added: "Thank you to my teacher Kim Janzen for spending the last 5 months working tirelessly with me!!"

Ashton Kutcher: For the win!

Here's a little perspective to kick off your weekend: Ashton Kutcher is not only having sexual relations with Mila Kunis but he's also pulling in a whopping $24 million a year.

So even though Kutcher is the butt of many jokes, maybe he's having the last laugh?

According to a new article in Forbes, the actor earned that huge salary courtesy of his starring role on the top-rated sitcom, "Two and a Half Men" (his tech investments also helped).

Following Kutcher were Hugh Laurie and Ray Romano, tied for second place at $18 million thanks to the syndication of "House" and "Everybody Loves Raymond." Next: Alec Baldwin of "30 Rock" and Mark Harmon of "NCIS" in another tie at $15 million a year, followed by Tim Allen, star of "Last Man Standing," at $14 million. Sadly, Jon Cryer, who always played second financial fiddle to Charlie Sheen on "Men," is still losing out to his more handsome co-worker and is only bringing in $13 million.

One day the nerds will rise, Cryer, and you will have your due.

CLIFF LIPSON/CBS

▶ Cryer just compared his paycheck to Kutcher's.

Talking points

Megan Fox is a mom

Megan Fox gave birth to a baby boy last month, according to E! News, keeping mum about the arrival. Fox and husband Brian Austin Green welcomed son Noah Shannon Green on Sept. 27, a first for the couple. Green also has a 10-year-old son, Kassius, from a previous relationship. An already pregnant Fox told Cosmopolitan magazine in April that she's "always been maternal" and wants "at least two, probably three kids."

More on Aniston and Theroux's engagement

Jennifer Aniston gives fiance Justin Theroux high marks for secrecy in the lead-up to his popping the question. "The proposal was one of the sneakiest jobs I've ever seen," Aniston tells People magazine. "I had no idea." The actress also has no idea what she'll be wearing for her big day, but she knows it won't be anything too experimental. "A bride should look like herself," Aniston says. "If you try something new, you'll feel uncomfortable."

▶ Aniston and Theroux: The happy couple.

Kellan Lutz sees gold in his future

"Twilight" star Kellan Lutz is certainly not short on self-confidence. While the 27-year-old actor is saying goodbye to the supersuccessful vampire franchise, he sees a lot more success in his future. "I want to act for the rest of my life," Lutz tells DuJour magazine. "I'll win an Oscar one day, but I'm in no rush to get there. I don't care if that takes me 50 years and I'm old. I just love what I do."

Living the teenage dream — for now

Katy Perry may be enjoying her time with John Mayer — this week, at least — but Perry's brother, David Hudson, doesn't think the "Teenage Dream" singer has met "the one" yet. "She deserves a true gentleman, and I don't think she's found that," Hudson says, according to Hollyscoop, adding that Perry doesn't "necessarily [need a guy] in the business, just someone that's really got something impressive." Of course, just because he's her brother doesn't mean she'll take any of his advice. "She shrugs it off because she's her own person," Hudson admits.

Guess who won't be appearing on Handler's show?

Chelsea Handler has had all sorts of guests on her talk show, but she has to draw the line somewhere. When asked by "Access Hollywood" if there's anyone she would never have on "Chelsea Lately," the host says, "Well, probably Paris Hilton or something. She hasn't begged [to come on], but I mean, I can't look at her. She's like the worst." Handler also shoots down the idea of ever interviewing Dina or Michael Lohan, the headline-grabbing parents of troubled actress Lindsay Lohan. "No, I can't talk to them," Handler says. "That's just a hot mess."

ELIN KLING FOR MARCIANO

▶ Elin Kling for Marciano will hit stores and www.ekformarciano.com on Oct. 22. The collection will be available worldwide on Nov. 1.

Elin Kling collaborated with Guess by Marciano for a capsule collection of chic fall staples Plus, what's on her must-have list

Elin Kling, the popular Swedish personal style blogger and entrepreneur (she co-founded fashion blog portal NowManifest, which was recently bought by Fairchild Fashion Media), is no stranger to the design side of pretty clothes. Last year, she became the first blogger to collaborate with H&M on a line and is now bringing her minimal chic aesthetic to a capsule collection for Guess by Marciano. Inspired by matadors and Spanish femininity, the 34-piece line features everything from a cool denim shirt to a sleek black party dress. We caught up with the busy blogger at the launch party.

What made you collaborate with Marciano?

It was really fun and a good challenge because my brand [doesn't] share the same aesthetic as Guess. Also, I'm the first one that they've collaborated with, so I thought that was fun, too.

How have you incorporated your own style into the line?

I tried to not have too much of my own style, but when I look at the collection I'm like, "Hmm, yes, you can definitely see my style in it." But also you and see with the denim and the oversized sweater that I wanted to find the perfect basic pieces.

What are your three must-haves for fall?

Definitely [something] plaid. I always think you need big large knits. I'm more for knits than jackets and also just big, big, big scarves. I love them, knits on knits on knits. Christopher Kane makes knits that I love.

Interview

▶ Carol Lim and Humberto Leon founded OC in 2002.

The cool kids: Carol Lim and Humberto Leon

"We want Opening Ceremony to be a place [where] you discover things. The shopping part is secondary," says the brand's co-founder, Humberto Leon.

It sounds bizarrely counter-intuitive, but the business approach of Leon and his partner, Carol Lim, is to be less concerned with aggressive expansionism and more focused on growing organically. Their popular stores, filled with cutting-edge designers, offer access to exclusivity — but within the framework of an inclusive Opening Ceremony community. So far the business model is working: They have 4 million unique visitors to www.openingceremony.us and a Twitter following that exceeds 74,000. Their own Opening Ceremony label is sold in more than 300 stores worldwide, and they have boutiques in New York, L.A. and Tokyo.

Fashion blogger Susie Lau (www.stylebubble.co.uk) attributes their success to "making fashion approachable and aspirational for a younger clientele — there's a real connection between music, film, art and even food in their selection."

It doesn't hurt that downtown fixtures Chloe Sevigny, the label Rodarte and film director Spike Jonze are all fans and collaborators on the brand.

Leon and Lim are now bringing this cool, inner-circle idea to the Parisian label Kenzo, where they were named creative directors last year. "Kenzo Takada had a strong community around him, like editor Carine Roitfeld and model Jerry Hall," says Leon. "We're trying to tell the story [of the brand] through our eyes and vision."

Songza CMJ

Whether you're going to see shows at the CMJ Music Marathon in NYC this weekend, or you've decided to just keep score at home, the playlist at www.songza.com/listen/cmj-music-marathon-2012-songza is perfect for you. It features songs from many of the up-and-coming artists performing throughout Manhattan and Brooklyn. Sure, there are heavy hitters on there like The Walkmen, pictured — who played Thursday night (and play Royale in Boston on Friday!) — but there is also about six and a half hours of new acts that you've never even heard of yet, like Born Ruffians, Generationals and Fat History Month.

— Songza is a streaming platform that mines years of music history and today's music blogs for the best gems, so you don't have to. The company, which calls itself a music concierge service, offers thousands of expertly-curated playlists for free on the Web, iPhone and iPad. Each week Metro teams up with Songza to bring you fun new playlists as you enter into the weekend.

GOING THE DISTANCE

The first nights of the CMJ Music Marathon in NYC yielded hybrids of hip-hop, punk, dance, socially conscious soul and good old-fashioned rock 'n' roll

DANIEL BOCZARSKI/REDFERNS

▶ Death Grips

Employing a divide and conquer strategy, Metro let its music loving writers loose on the streets of New York City for the past few nights to hear what the future sounds like. Among the thousands of bands playing as part of the College Music Journal's annual blow out Music Marathon, these are the ones we're feeling right now.

Death Grips

With a lineup that focuses on an MC and a drummer, Death Grips grabbed the audience by the neck and wrangled sweaty, writhing dance moves from the mosh pit. The feel was primitive and honest, the genre a blend of drum and bass hip-hop and tribal hard core. The crowd fed off vocalist MC Ride, who spit lyrics over slowed growly samples mashed into a rock dirge and punctuated by a popping drum kit. The laptop pushes a wall of sound through the audience with a bass so heavy it puts your innards into overdrive.

Motive

Let's call these guys The Strokes 2.0. Dressed in slick skinny-tie suits, these Seattle transplants peddle pure melodic rock, with catchy hooks that recall the best moments of The Killers and the fuzzy vocals that remind us of a more cheerful Julian Casablancas. With their videos getting top ratings on MTV.com, soon everyone will have some Motive of their own.

Flying Lotus

Flying Lotus took the stage to headline a CMJ showcase that was webcast via NPR. His expansive smile and wide range as a DJ kept pace with a crowd still feeling the highs of Death Grips. His set was big and sticky. The DJ/producer managed to blend Radiohead and Erykah Badu, both are frequent collaborators, with his own mellifluous rhythms.

Mykki Blanco

Mykki Blanco, the alter ego of Michael Quattlebaum Jr., mixed a helping of tribal beats with her radical rap to a young face-paint laden crowd at the FADER Fort pop-up space in Williamsburg. The solo artist follows in the nontraditional path of recent indie hip-hop a la Odd Future, successfully dipping into punk and electro while retaining individuality.

Cody ChessnuTT

Cody ChessnuTT provides the type of socially conscious lyrics that Gil Scott-Heron perfected, but with the type of warm and beautiful timbre that Marvin Gaye perfected. Sitting with a cup of tea by his foot, wearing a blue army helmet and playing a vintage Gibson, ChessnuTT treated listeners to tunes from his long-awaited "Landing on a Hundred," which comes out Oct. 30, almost exactly 10 years and one month after his last full-length album. With subject matter ranging from a disrespectful nephew to the challenges of making a marriage work to the redemption of somebody who "used to smoke crack back in the day," this is sociopolitical soul.

ANDY SHEPPARD

▶ Lindsey Troy of Deap Vally

Deap Vally

Considering the oversaturation of bleeps and bloops lately, Joan Jett-esque grrl rock duo Deap Vally are a welcome change. Skimpy, sequined outfits, long hair and heavy rockin' are the name of the game for these L.A. women who are already signed to Island Records and will open for Muse in Europe later this fall. Throw on your jean jacket and get down with Lindsey Troy's raspy vocals.

You know what he meant; focus on the achievement

RE: "GOP CANDIDATE'S REPLY GOES VIRAL" (METRO, OCT. 18) People with the most minimal intellect should be able to figure out that when Romney talked about binders full of women, he meant their résumés. Frankly, I can't figure out what all the hullabaloo is about. If this is the best that Obama's supports can come away with from the debate, then it's obvious that Romney is doing quite well. By the way, when Romney was governor, his cabinet had the most percentage of women in leadership positions than any state in the nation. I wonder how many tweets that tidbit of information got.

DAVID FRIEDLANDER, VIA E-MAIL

Mitt Romney is catching quite a bit of heat for his binder full of woman comment which is unfortunate. He did what any courageous leader who was unwilling to accept the status quo should do. He immediately realized when he became governor that there was an unequal number of women employed there compared to the number of men. He then directed his team to interview for qualified people and compile a list, which is where the binder came from. That was the right thing to do. The focus should be on how woman employed by the Obama administration currently make 18% less than their male counterparts, or how the poverty levels among woman in this country is at a 17-year high. If I were a female voter, those are the statistics I would focus on.

JOEY WHITMOYER, VIA E-MAIL

Nothing wrong with a little moderation

RE: "THESE ARE THE TIMES THAT TRY MEN'S SOULS – AND FACTS" (METRO, OCT. 18) Your editor's note states that Obama did not refer to the attack on the embassy as an act of terror. That goes a little too far. He mentioned the attack and then talked about acts of terror. He was including that attack on a list of acts of terror.

HARRY THORN, VIA E-MAIL

RE: "NO FOURTH WALL FOR FOURTH ESTATE" (METRO, OCT. 18) Candy Crowley did nothing wrong in correcting Mitt Romney. President Obama claimed he used the term "acts of terror" the following day in the Rose Garden. Romney, in his usual reckless fashion, basically called the president a liar. Crowley, who happened to be there that day, clarified: "He did, in fact, sir." This was perfectly within the bounds of moderating, asking pointed follow-ups, and getting at the truth.

Isn't that the purpose of these debates? Secondly, why is Romney's team splitting hairs on this? Did we initially believe that the attack was planned or spontaneous — who cares? It was only natural to connect it to the mobbing of the U.S. embassy in Cairo that same day.

The key is not how it was defined and when; the point is that it happened, now how did we respond? Romney doesn't seem to have any specific criticism of our military and security response to the attack, only this pointless argument over when it was publicly declared a "planned act of terror" rather than a spontaneous act of terror.

Tebow at RB?
Tim Tebow could see some time at running back Sunday against the Patriots, according to Jets head coach Rex Ryan.

"That's a possibility," Ryan said. "The thing about Tim with him being a football player, by playing quarterback he knows all the positions. So can you plug him in at running back? Can you plug him in at tight end? I think the answer is yes."

Expect the Jets to get pass happy Sunday

Patriots state of the secondary at an all-time low ◗ If they can't solve Sanchez, Tebow, who can they stop? ◗ Brady must get back to basics

Three things to watch this Sunday as the Jets invade Foxboro to take on tough-luck Patriots (4:25 p.m., CBS):

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Mark Sanchez may actually find some success through the air this week.

1 THE SANCHEZ AIR SHOW
Last week, Mark Sanchez threw for a total of 82 passing yards. No, that's not a typo. He completed a season-low 11 passes on 18 attempts against Indianapolis. He's thrown for less than 150 yards in three of the Jets' six games this season – not going to cut it. Luckily, he'll see the Patriots secondary on Sunday. A balanced offense is key, but look for Sanchez to throw it often. If he converts on the majority of them, the Pats secondary is worse than we thought. If he doesn't, he's worse than we thought.

2 WILL BRADY BE BRADY?
We all know what Tom Brady can do with the ball in his hands, but the Pats have increasingly been putting the ball in the hands of the running backs. Is it paying off? It didn't last week. On the Patriots' last drive before Seattle scored the go-ahead touchdown, Stevan Ridley ran the ball twice for a yard each. That set up a 3rd-and-8 in which Brady's pass fell incomplete. The run game was tough from the start last week, and that play call was questionable. The Jets are without Darrelle Revis, their shutdown corner, so look for Brady to take advantage.

3 FIRST PLACE ON THE LINE
The last time the Patriots saw the Jets, it was Week 10 of last season and the Pats were coming off back-to-back losses to the Steelers and Giants. Needless to say, there was some unsettlement around New England. Would they lose three in a row, and to a division rival this time? They didn't. The Pats cruised, 37-16, and never lost again until the Super Bowl. Both teams will give it their best in hopes to be in sole possession of first place on Monday, but the Patriots shouldn't have a problem. A blowout win could be just what they need to get back on track.

The cold, hard football facts

A look at the NFL through the eyes of the stat experts at Coldhard football facts.com:

Don't hibernate on the Bears
Chicago enjoyed its bye week in Week 6, adding to the amazing lack of hype surrounding the most dominant team in football right now. The 4-1 Bears have blown out four teams and are No. 1 league-wide in an incredible nine of 20 Quality Stats we use to size every team in every game at Cold, Hard, Football Facts. As a result, Chicago is No. 1 in our Quality Stats Power Rankings.

CHFF Quality Stats Power Rankings Top 5:
No. 1 — Chicago (4-1)
No. 2 — NY Giants (4-2)
No. 3 — Atlanta (6-0)
No. 4 — Houston (5-1)
No. 5 — Green Bay (3-3)

FFChamps.com Fantasy Impact Player:
Doug Martin, RB, Tampa Bay — Martin scalped the Chiefs for 131 yards from scrimmage in Week 6. He will march to another standout performance this Sunday against a Saints defense that is getting tormented for 172 rushing yards per game. They allowed seven touchdowns as well, so Martin is a good bet to make the cannons go off at Raymond James Stadium.

NHL, players union take step back in negotiations

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman said he was "thoroughly disappointed" after Thursday's meetings with the players' association and that the two sides took a "step backward."

This came 48 hours after there was a strong hope that the lockout could be nearing its end.

The player's union gave Bettman three counterproposals Thursday following the NHL's proposal of an 82-game season and a 50-50 split of revenue. METRO/MB

Sox have list in place

The Red Sox appear ready to pick their next manager from a list of five: Tony Pena, Tim Wallach, Brad Ausmus, John Farrell and DeMarlo Hale.

WEEI.com reported this week that Boston's 2012 bench coach, Tim Bogar, has been ruled out. Farrell, long considered the favorite for the job, is still under contract with the Blue Jays. METRO

Son of Eagles coach Reid died of overdose

Garrett Reid, the son of Philadelphia Eagles head coach Andy Reid who died Aug. 5 at the Eagles' training camp facility at Lehigh University, was killed by an overdose of heroin according to Northampton County, Pa., Coroner Zachary Lysek.

"We are confident today that Mr. Reid's death was the result of a self-injected lethal dose of heroin," District Attorney John Morganelli said Thursday.

Police at Lehigh were called to Garrett Reid's dorm room at 7:20 a.m. on Aug. 5 and the Eagles team physician attempted to revive him with a defibrillator. Reid was a recovering drug addict but was seemingly getting his life back on track before he may have relapsed.

"I don't want to die doing drugs. I don't want to be that kid who was the son of the head coach of the Eagles, who was spoiled and on drugs and OD'd and just faded into oblivion," Garrett Reid said to a judge after a 2007 high-speed car crash in which he was high on heroin. MATT BURKE

Metro's NFL Power Rankings | by Mike Greger

FALCONS (6-0)
Where are the haters now? After six weeks, Atlanta is the only undefeated team in football. They are sound in all three phases — offense, defense and special teams, including one of the most clutch kickers around.

TEXANS (5-1)
The rest of the league should be sending Green Bay gift baskets after laying out the blueprint for beating Houston. They were held to 90 yards rushing, while the defense was limited to two sacks.

RAVENS (5-1)
Baltimore moves up a spot after gutting out a tough win. The bigger picture isn't so rosy, however, after losing two key defenders — Ray Lewis and LaDarius Webb — for the season.

GIANTS (4-2)
They had as dominating a win as you can get in the NFL. Also, David Wilson is gaining more trust and could be a new weapon for an already potent offense.

49ERS (4-2)*
Alex Smith made too many mistakes last Sunday. You can credit New York's game plan or blame Smith. *Not including Thursday.

BEARS (4-1)
They jump up on their bye week because, well, the teams ahead of them all lost. Kudos to Brian Urlacher for telling everyone to back off Jay Cutler.

SEAHAWKS (4-2)*
If they can get quarterback play from Russell Wilson every week like they did against the Patriots, then watch out. They already own the NFL's top-rated defense, led by Bruce Irvin. *Not including Thursday.

VIKINGS (4-2)
They aren't going to win many games if Christian Ponder has to drop back to throw 52 times. That's not a knock, that's just the way it is. Use Adrian Peterson.

PACKERS (3-3)
This was the Aaron Rodgers, the reigning MVP version, we all expected to see in 2012. Question is, will he poke his head out again next week?

10

PATRIOTS (3-3)
Even Tom Brady is human — as shocking as that sounds. The NFL's best offense has three losses by two points or fewer this season.

11

CARDINALS (4-2)
The QB carousel is back in Phoenix. Kevin Kolb is hurt (ribs, chest) and John Skelton is in. No matter, there's no excuse for losing to Buffalo at home. Worse yet, their next four games are against elite teams.

12

EAGLES (3-3)
The Todd Bowles era begins after two straight fourth-quarter collapses and some questionable play-calling on both sides of the ball. Andy Reid is officially on the hot seat.

13

BRONCOS (3-3)
Their win — from 24 back — is the dramatic moment we've been waiting for. Peyton Manning senses blood in the water in the AFC West.

14

REDSKINS (3-3)
One small "Landover Leap" for man, one giant "Landover Leap" for Washington-kind. RG3 may be bigger than Obama soon.

15

JETS (3-3)
Maybe Rex Ryan can ground and pound his way into the playoffs after all — in spite of the Mark Sanchez-Tim Tebow circus and despite not having Revis Island. They face the Patriots in a big one this weekend.

16

BENGALS (3-3)
Disturbing trend, losing second straight vs. team they should have demolished. It will be the good Bengals versus the bad Bengals the rest of the way.

17

CHARGERS (3-3)
We should drop them lower, but we'll trust Philip Rivers to clean up this mess. If not, Norv Turner might not last the season.

18

DOLPHINS (3-3)
Been on this bandwagon all along, keep rising up. When Ryan Tannehill doesn't turn it over — he's improving — Miami can play with anyone.

19

RAMS (3-3)
St. Louis hasn't lost back-to-back games all year, but an extremely tough stretch on the schedule is ahead with games against Green Bay, New England and the division foe 49ers.

CORNERS TO AVOID

NFL news

Not the best: Lions RB Mikel Leshoure gets some more job security as a result of Jahvid Best's on-going concussion issues. They may very well end his career.

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

Everyone knows about Revis Island. But that's not the only place wide-outs get locked up.

As we expand our depth of thought when setting fantasy lineups, we can begin to examine one-on-one matchups. With Darrelle Revis out for the year, there are just a few corners to shy away from.

No ordinary Cro

Antonio Cromartie seems to play even better when Revis is sidelined. Using his elite size and physical press coverage, Cromartie has held down the likes of Reggie Wayne and Andre Johnson in the last two weeks. If you're deciding between Brandon Lloyd and another WR2/3 this week, it's worth shying away from Cro.

Ram Tough

Jeff Fisher has brought a physical, defensive brand of football to St. Louis. Cortland Finnegan fits right in. The feisty corner held Brian Hartline without a catch last week and it wasn't a fluke.

Still the Champ

The Broncos don't always use Champ Bailey in shadow coverage. But when they do, he dominates. Look for Marques Colston to see a ton of Champ after Denver's bye.
